Abstract

The International Relations of the Holy See – Vatican Relations with the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan A Case Study

Rif'at M. Bdoor

Mu'tah University, 2006

This study will discuss specific facets of the Holy See, which is the expression of the activity of the Vatican City when it comes to its relations with states and international societies. The study shows the activity of the Holy See as its relations are not new in historic diplomatic delegations with the emperors, kings and heads of the world, where the most ancient delegations are found in the history of diplomacy.

The second part of this study focuses on the relations between the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan and the Holy See as a model of relations. Prior to the announcement of official relations and the embassies in 1994, the amicable relations goal is the service of persons and respect of their dignity. The research concludes with regard to the Vatican towards the Middle East, especially the Palestinian problem which has significance to the Holy See since it is a Human and Political Question and a question of the Holy Sites. After discussing the visit of Pope Paul VI in January 1964 to Jordan and Palestine during the second Vatican council, which opened wide the churches doors to the world, the research describes some of the factors that helped to establish and develop the relations between Jordan and the Holy See.

An emphasis will be made to more cooperation to keep the Christian minorities, which are affected by immigration, and respect for Christians and all citizens, especially regarding Religious Freedom, which is the mother of all the freedoms. However, there is no military or economic cooperation since this cooperation between Jordan and the Holy See has a human foundation with its roots and priority to promote the service to humanity and society without forgetting the main duties of the Catholic Church which are, at the core, spiritual.
